Hague tells Israel: Don't undermine Iran nuclear deal

London.— Israel should avoid taking any action that would undermine the interim nuclear agreement reached between Iran and world powers at the weekend, Britain's Foreign Secretary William Hague said yesterday.

Urging world leaders to give the interim deal a chance, Hague said it was important to try to understand those who opposed the agreement. But he urged Israel and others to confine their criticism to rhetoric.

"We would discourage anybody in the world, including Israel, from taking any steps that would undermine this agreement and we will make that very clear to all concerned," Hague told parliament.

Hague added that he had not seen any sign that any country opposed to the agreement would try to disrupt it "in any practical way". But he said Britain would be "on its guard".

He was speaking after Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu on Sunday denounced the nuclear deal as an "historic mistake".

Netanyahu is sending his national security adviser to Washington for talks about the agreement.

Hague told parliament he hoped a comprehensive nuclear agreement with Tehran could be reached within a year, but warned that world powers could swiftly reverse any sanctions relief they had granted Iran if Tehran reneged on the deal.

Government decides to bring back our old residence cards

The days of the useless green certificate could be numbered and it could be scrapped by next year.

Green residence certificate set to be scrapped and old-style residence cards to be introduced.

Palma.—The non-Spanish European expatriate community was given an early Christmas present last night, when the Spanish government announced plans to re-introduce our old style residence cards, according to Kate Mentink, of the association Europeos for España.

"We have been acting in conjunction with Sra Gari Duran, Senator for the Partido Popular in Madrid. Thanks to the ceaseless work by both "Europeos por España" and Sra Duran, this week we have been advised that the problem will finally be resolved with the return of the Residency Card as an Identity Card including a photo. We expect this to be effective in the early part of 2014," Kate Mentink told the Bulletin last night. The Director of the Cabinet of the Secretary of State, Sr Alejandro Sanchez Garcia, has confirmed that the arguments presented by "Europeos por España" for the need for a Residency Card with a photograph for identification purposes have been accepted, and indeed confirmed by the Police Authorities themselves. The move will be warmly welcomed on the island.
