New Top Gear launches on Amazon

• Britain's former BBC Top Gear host Jeremy Clarkson has signed an exclusive deal with Amazon to present a new motoring show for the online retailer's subscription service alongside co-presenters Richard Hammond and James May.

Clarkson had generated both controversy and profits for Britain's publicly-funded broadcaster. His BBC contract was not renewed.

THE END OF BULLFIGHTING IN PALMA

- Palma City Council in historic vote as 130,000 people sign petition across the island.
- Balearic league against blood sports welcomes the move and hopes that other councils across the island will follow Palma's lead.
- New council says that this was one of their election pledges which they have now honoured.

Palma.—The Palma City Council voted yesterday to outlaw bullfighting in the city in a historic move which was welcomed by scores of people from the league against blood sports.

The vote yesterday was part of an election pledge by the new city council. Palma has a bullring but it has not hosted a bullfight for many years.

See Page Three.

Palma without blood sports.

Step aside, here come Europe's hot economies: Spain and Ireland

WHICH are the two fastest growing economies in the euro zone? Not the big beasts in the core, but the once-struggling peripheral economies of Spain and Ireland. Spain reported yesterday that its economy grew 1 percent between the first and second quarters of the year and is running at an annual clip of 3.1 percent.

Ireland, meanwhile, issued a delayed report on its first quarter. It showed a 1.4 percent month-on-month growth for a stunning 6.5 percent annual rate, a pace more associated with an emerging market economy.

By contrast, overall annual euro zone growth is 1.0 percent, with Germany slightly ahead at 1.1 percent.

Spain and Ireland have suffered badly over the past few years as their banks have creaked under the weight of lending into now-burst housing bubbles.
