Euromillions jackpot winner in Palma

Palma.—Someone in Palma has got a very impressive early Christmas present - a 29,377,167 euros present, the jackpot in Friday's Euromillions lottery.

One of the owners of the lottery establishment in the calle Antoni Frontera was sent a message at just after half ten on Friday night by the head of the lotteries' association in the Balearics, to tell him that his office had registered the largest lottery prize ever in the city. Antoni and co-owner Lorenzo Martin celebrated this by having bottles of cava when they opened the office yesterday morning. They didn't, however, know who the winner was. They believe it is an individual better, as they consulted the clubs and syndicates who regularly play the lottery and none of them had the winning ticket. They also suspect it was won with a lucky-dip ticket, as 90% of tickets they sell are lucky-dips.

Lorenzo reckoned that the Euromillions win will give hope to others in the neighbourhood and is therefore looking forward to a better than ever Christmas lottery.

BREXIT PLANS

May's legal challenge

● Prime minister Theresa May's government launches a challenge tomorrow against a court ruling that it requires parliamentary approval to start the process of leaving the European Union, a decision that could upset Britain's Brexit plans.

If the Supreme Court, the United Kingdom's highest judicial body, dismisses the government appeal it could derail May's timetable for triggering Article 50 of the Lisbon Treaty and leaving the EU. See Inside Today.
