Paris Hilton in Palma today: Inside

Palma.—An estimated 500 kilos of rubbish is collected every morning in Magalluf's Calle Punta Ballena. It is the debris from the night before. The Calvia council said yesterday that literally dozens of their staff are involved in the daily clean-up operation.

Plastic and paper are the items which are discarded the most, according to the council. The massive operation will continue throughout the summer.

Spain's Rajoy denies slush fund in unprecedented court testimony

Madrid.—Mariano Rajoy yesterday denied any knowledge of an illegal financing scheme within his conservative People's Party (PP) as he became the first sitting prime minister in Spain to give evidence in a trial, prompting calls for his resignation. Rajoy's appearance at the corruption trial as a witness turns the spotlight back on the long-running graft scandals that have tainted his party at a delicate time as he no longer enjoys a majority in parliament. He is not accused of wrongdoing. Allegations of a PP slush fund have plagued the party for years and have resurfaced as part of the sprawling trial, which was originally centred on illegal dealings between small city councils and a network of businesses. Page 3
