Prime Minister May Back my Brexit deal and let Britain “turn a corner”

London.—Prime Minister Theresa May urged lawmakers on Monday to back her Brexit deal, promising that it would allow the country to “turn a corner” and let the government focus on solving domestic problems such as housing and a skill shortage. May made the appeal in a New Year’s message little more than two weeks before a make-or-break vote in parliament on her plan for Britain’s exit from the European Union which is due to happen on March 29.

The vote, which May postponed in December to avoid defeat, will be a pivotal moment for the world’s fifth-largest economy: it will determine whether Britain follows her plan for a managed exit and relatively close economic ties, or faces massive uncertainty about the country’s next step. “New Year is a time to look ahead and in 2019 the UK will start a new chapter. The Brexit deal I have negotiated delivers on the vote of the British people.” see inside.

British woman in hospital following Algaïda fall

Palma.—A 25-year-old British woman was rushed to Son Espases Hospital yesterday morning after falling some 25 metres at the Cura Sanctuary on the Puig de Randa in Algaïda.

The incident occurred in the early hours. The woman’s partner called the 112 emergency service around three o’clock. The couple had apparently driven to the sanctuary. The woman was walking behind the wall of the sanctuary car park and then fell.

Fire crews from Lluçmajor and Manacor and mountain rescue specialists from Inca were called, and the woman was taken to Son Espases in a serious condition having suffered head injuries.
