BREXIT IN MELTDOWN

● Theresa May's Brexit deal was last night defeated in the Commons by 391 votes to 242, a majority of 149. She said that she "profoundly regrets" the decision of MPs: PAGE 2 AND 20

● Prime Minister Theresa May's EU withdrawal deal was rejected by MPs for a second time, throwing her Brexit strategy into further confusion, last night.

The PM said MPs will now get a vote on whether the UK should leave without a deal on 29 March and, if that fails, on whether Brexit should be delayed.

She said the EU would need to know what use any extension would be put to.

Labour leader Jeremy Corbyn said the prime minister should now call a general election.
