NZ family scores "royal flush" thanks to baby Archie- report

All four children in a New Zealand family have Royal namesakes after Britain's Prince Harry and his wife Meghan named their newborn son Archie earlier this week, it was reported yesterday.

"It's a royal flush - what are the chances?" Jo Stafford, who lives in Otago in the southeastern region on New Zealand's South Island, told the Otago Daily Times.

Stafford's children are Charlotte, 11, Harry, 9, George, 7, and Archie, 4. "It was just a fluke. We've always just really loved those names," Stafford told the Otago Daily Times.

"First, Prince George came along, then Princess Charlotte — which we thought was just a coincidence. But now Archie ..." she said.
