MIXED VIEWS OVER RESORT BOOZE BAN

● Almost 80 percent of Bulletin readers who took part in a poll on our website support the Balearic government's booze ban in Magalluf and the Playa de Palma.

● Association of British Travel Agent (ABTA) warns that move could be misguided and may mean that British families will go elsewhere.

● "A crackdown was needed but the new rulings, although welcome, could open up a can of worms especially as the new legislation only affects two resorts on the island." Viewpoint: Page Two

● ABTA says that it could also be targeting the wrong market because all-inclusive breaks were popular with families looking for a budget break not the so-called youth tourism.

● Balearic business community is split over the new legislation but everyone agrees that something had to be done.
