Bulletin readers want election not a new PM

Palma.—The majority of Bulletin readers who took part in an opinion poll on our website (www.majorcadailybulletin.com) want a general election rather than a new Labour Prime Minister. A total of 68 percent said that the country should go to the polls while 20 percent wanted Andy Burnham as the new PM. There was some support for former defence minister Al Carns who is rumoured to be planning a leadership challenge.

Scrapping 90 day rule would lead to boom

● If Spain or other European Union countries scrapped the 90/180 days rule it would lead to a surge in demand for Spanish properties, according to experts consulted by the Bulletin.

Non EU citizens/non-Spanish residents can only spend a maximum of 180 days a year in Spain which has obviously dented the property market.

Real estate agents and local governments are already heavily lobbying to relax or scrap the rule, arguing that this cap is costing the Spanish economy millions in lost revenue.
